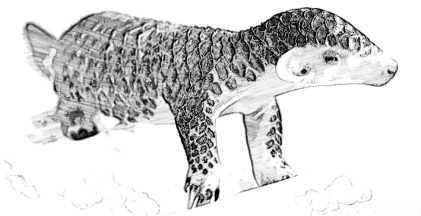
The extinction call of Pangolins is a concern, Pango Inu is a project to help create more awareness to stop the poaching of Pangolins around the world



Mission

1)To Support the mass protection of Pangolins around the world
2) Make cryptocurrency a pave way to care for the home (forest) of Pangolins
3) Create global wealth, through the protection of Pangolins by distributing a cryptocurrency coin (Pango Inu) that can increase fast in value.
4) Create more awareness on the need to save Pangolins from extinction

The Pango Inu token is totally decentralized from control by Banks, Companies, Institutions or Governments.

The Pango Inu token is OF the Pangolins supporters, BY the pangolin supporters and FOR the Pangos

Pangolins are hunted for meat, for use in traditional medicine and as fashion accessories, the hunt for Pangolins is rapidly spreading like wildfire despite the ban on the Pangolin trade .

Pangolins are a unique group of insect-eating animals, feeding mainly on termites and ants. They may look like reptiles, with their bodies covered in overlapping scales, but they're actually mammals! Pangolins are about the size of a house cat, with small heads, long snouts, and thick tails. These prehistoric mammals, which have been around for 80 million years, are now threatened with extinction.

Fact; Pangolins are the only mammals in the world that are covered in scales. Their scales are made of keratin—the same material that makes fingernails and hair.

World Pangolin Day is observed on the 3rd Saturday of February each year and so it's always a good time to reflect on this incredibly unique and endangered mammal. Sadly, pangolins are the most illegally trafficked mammals on the planet, with up to 200,000 animals being poached from the wild EACH YEAR. Pango Inu is here to save the Pangolins with the superpower of Cryptocurrency
